Compulsory enrolment and attendance at school.

Under the Education Act of South Australia, parents and/or caregivers are held responsible for the regular attendance of all children in their care.

All children aged between 6 and 16 years must be enrolled and attend school regularly.

Is regular attendance important?

Yes: from the first day!

If students miss learning basic skills in the early years they often experience difficulties later.

It has been shown that irregular attendance in the junior primary and primary years often leads to the development of poor attendance at high school.

Six days' absence per term from junior primary to the end of year 7 equals one year of schooling missed.

10 minutes late each day equals one and a half days absence per term, this is 6 days (over one week) of missed learning in a year. Even a few minutes lateness affects a child's settling into the school routine. It's better to be at school five minutes early than five minutes late.

Irrespective of the cause, research shows that students who are absent for more than ten days per year are disadvantaged both educationally and socially.

Must I send my child to school?

Yes:

All children between the ages of 6 and 16 are required by law to attend school regularly.

Must I send my child every day?

Yes unless:

- The child is too sick to attend.
- The child has an infectious disease such as chicken pox, mumps or measles.
- The child is incapacitated by injury preventing movement around the school.
- The child is accompanying his or her parents and/or caregivers on a family holiday that cannot be arranged in school vacations. In this case an exemption form completed and the absence approved by the principal.
- The principal is provided with an acceptable reason preventing the child's attendance.

Where possible, dental and medical appointments should be made out of school hours.

In all cases please notify the school as soon as is possible.
